TREASURE HUNT

"We found it!" Kristen and Nick Johnson shouted. They pulled the treasure box from under the bush and opened it. Kristen and Nick are playing a game with the help of a machine for maps and directions called a GPS device (Global Positioning System).

The game is to find a geocache, the treasure's hiding place, using a GPS device. There are more than 250,000 geocache locations around the world. Someone fills a box with toys or other treasure. They hide the box and put its GPS location on a list on the website. Treasure hunters use the website and the GPS device to look for the box. It may not always be easy to find, but it is fun to try.
