B. Read. CD 2 12

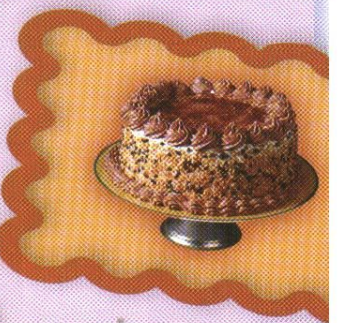

Chocolate

Do you like chocolate? You should thank the Mexicans. Ancient Mexican people made a chocolate drink from cacao seeds. Their chocolate was bitter and spicy. Many years later, cacao seeds were brought to Spain by the Spanish. Spanish people added sugar to their chocolate. This sweet chocolate became the most popular drink in Europe. Both cacao and sugar were very expensive, so only rich people drank chocolate.

Over the years, chocolate was used in cakes and pastries, and in the 1800s, the chocolate candy bar was created. Chocolate also became cheaper, so more people were able to eat and drink it.
